

Centralisation or decentralisation of universities?

- For Iceland and the other Nordic countries not either or as long as you want people to live and work outside the metropolitan regions!
- The universities are 'bridges' to the global knowledge economy + sustain local communities!
- However public actors have to formulate objectives not only concerning the quality of science and education, but also concerning the role of the university in local and regional economic and social development!